The last named was the fourteen.

- The last named was the fourteen-year-old nephew of Capt. Roulet, of the Madelaine. All the crew of the Madelaine were married except Hardy, Mollet, Rignier, Gaud, Delannsy, Degnen, Liron, Garnier and Ameline.

The Oueen arrived at Quarantine at 10.30 o'clock this morning and went at once to her dock at the foot of West Houston street. The captain of the Madelaine was seen by an Evenino World reporter on board the Queen soon after she was docked. He said that his vessel sailed from Granville eight months ago. They had a very good fishing season along the Banks of Newfoundland, and the night collision had weighed anchor and set sail for Havre.

They expected to arrive there in two months.

A few minutes before 3 o'clock on the morning of last Thursday the Madelaine was headed east-northeast and was sailing with a light breeze at the rate of three or four miles The weather was very foggy and they could only see a short distance ahead.

The first I know about the steamer being mear was seeing her lights," the captain continued. "The Queen seemed to be coming up at full

"The Queen seemed to be coming up at full speed. The next moment came the crash. "I had not time to give a single direction. The steamship's iron bow struck the Madelaine on the starboard side, directly amidships, and cut her directly in two. "Before we could lift a hand to get the boats the vessel had sunk.

"The next thing I knew was that I was struckling in the vester.

boats the vessel had sunk.

"The next thing I knew was that I was struggling in the water.

"Two boats were lowered from the Queen and I was taken aboard.

"Twenty-one of the crew perished. They were asleep in their bunks at the time.

"Those on deck alone were saved.

"It was impossible for the Madelaine to have avoided the collision, as the steamer was going at great speed.

"An Evening World reporter also interviewed Capt. Healy, of the Queen. He said:

"I was not on deck at the time of the collision. Second Officer Jackson was on deck and says he saw a white light off the port bow of the Queen.

"He supposed, therefore, that it was a boat at anchor. His course would have taken him by her. The Queen was sailing west, three degrees north, at the time of the collision, the wind was southeast and we were making ten knots an hour. Her usual rate is eleven knots an hour.

"It was slightly hazy at the time The captain of the Madelaine gave the wrong signal. He afterwards explained that he only wished to call attention to the fact that they were there, and did not intend the signals to indicate the port or starboard side.

"The collision occurred in longitude 48 degrees 28 minutes, and latitude 46 degrees 18 minutes, and latitude 46 degrees 1 ninute. The French boat was cut right in two.

"I put the Queen back that the wreckage should not get in the paddle-wheels and lowered a boat within six minutes.

"All the men we saw were the capta'n and the three sailors. Why there were not more around, I do not know."

"All the men we saw were the capta'n and the three sailors Why there were not more around. I do not know."

"The passengers on the Queen felt the shock, and many rushed on deck.

"There was quite a panic at first, but Fourth Mate Taylor reassured the passengers by telling them that the steamer had only dropped her anchor.

"The Queen was not damaged more than that her bow was dented and scraped."

Pat Mullican alias J. H. O'Neill, a noted crook, was caught on Park Row to-day pawning a watch and chain, which he admits pavning a watch and chain, which he admits having snatched from Warren S. Ruttey, of Elmira, on the Bowery yesterday afternoon.

On Mulligan was also found a heavy three-strand gold chain and charm, which he says he would rather die than tell anything about. Officer Levy, of the Oak street station, partially identifies the chain and charm as missing from a house where a burglary and murder were committed. Mulligan is held at the Tombs and the matter is being investigated.

Something New in Footgear. Something New in Footgear.

The latest thing in footgear for men has been introduced by A. J. Cammeyer, the popular shoe dealer, of Sixth avenue and Twelfth street. It is a new style of shoe and is known as the "True form." Its great merit is that it feels comfortable from the start, and the wearer avoids the discontorts of "breaking in." The "true form" is made of fine caif and soils for $4.50 a pair.

For the benefit of his lady patrons Mr. Camberge has a large assortment of fancy colored used topped mose, with patent-leaker foxiogs, and Suede kid shoes and slippers for evening wear, all of the finest quelity and great bargains.

Billy Dacey Knocked Out in New Jersey This Morning.

The Williamsburger Remains the Light-Weight Champion.

He Had the Advantage of the Fight From the Beginning.

[SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.]
PATERISON, N. J., Oct. 10. The long-looked for prize-fight for the light-weight championship of America, between Jack McAuliffe, of Williamsburg, and Billy Dacey, of Greenpoint, was fought early this morning near Dover, N. J., and was won by McAuliffe in eleven rounds, after fighting 42 minutes and 40 seconds.

He thus retains the championship and the Police Gazette championship belt, and wins purse of $1,000. The fight was to a finish, and skin gloves were worn.

Yesterday was the day set for the fight and the men met in the morning and weighed in. McAuliffe was first on hand with Dooney Harris, who trained him, and a few moments later Dacey arrived with Tommy Barnes.

They were stripped of their clothing and were weighed in their ring costumes.

Jack tipped the beams at 181% pounds and Dacey weighed just 183.

Dacey looked by far the better. He was in the pluk of condition and his eyes were bright. McAuliffe looked rather pale and as if he were overtained.

The men then separated and did not meet again

Aulife looked rather pale and as if he were overtrained.

The men then separated and did not meet again until they were upon the battle-ground.

The sporting party, which met at an uptown hotel in New York carly yesterday evening, was a very distinguished one.

Six well-known joekers were there and sprinkled among heavy bookmaners, champion purilists, sports and newspaper men were representatives of hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of running horse feeh.

A two-hours' ratiway journey on a special train and the battle ground was found to be the barn of a pretty country hotel. The usual flaishing touches kept the men from getting ready to enter the ring till long after midnight, and then an extra delay of an hour and a half was occasioned by the intelligence that a raid was about to be finde.

Mealulife, eazer for the fray, was in the ring long before Dacey. A well-known New York sporting man, was chosen referee. Jimmy Colville, of Boston, was timekeeper for Mealulife, and the sporting reporter of The Evenino Workin held the watch 5:r the Greenpoint boy. Con McAuliffe and Boo Drew with Dooney Harris as bottle holders were the Williamsburger's esquires, while Tommy Barnes and Dick Toner, with John Long in the corner, attended on Dacy.

"One hundred dollars to $75-$100 to $60-$100 to $50 on McAuliffe!" were the cries that rang through the lantern-lighted rickety stable as the men sprang to the centre at the first call of time. Dacey shood rather low, and was evidently planning decisive counters from the start. McAuliffe, in the blik of copulition, after stripping, towered above him, though he takes a rather wide position. A moment's caulious featuring an ineffective exchange or two, then the two sharp lefts flew out, and two wiry, sgile bodies bent and twisted to give the the kid-covered hands more crushing force. Dacey's blow was neatly stopped on his opponent's forearm, but McAuliffe's went straight to the mark. But for Dacey's quick turning of his head to the right as the Berce blow came at his efe, we wil by blowing his nose as he walked to the scratch.
Nothing is considered more fatal to a fighter's

Nothing is considered more fatal to a fighter's chances of keeping his eyesight good in a mill than blowing the noise.

Dacey showed up much better than in the opening round. Once he reached Mac's forehead cleverly, but a tride high to have shut the eye, as the blow aimed to do.

McAullife was allowed first blood in the third round, and he had so much the best of punishment that the spectators were spipauding.

The next round gave such a decided lead to McAullife that offers to bet $100 to $25 in his favor were plenty. He was cleverer, stronger, faster than Dacey, who did not seem to be in as good form as his appearance betokened or his previous battles gave promise of.

Dacey made what many claimed was a fine stronger as the battle went on, but it lacked the essentials of being a really clever exhibit.

There was no generalship, let alone originality, about it.

When Dacey found McAuliffe was mastering him at his regular trotics, he simply fought right on the same to be a season to be the same to the same transpile.

when Dacey found McAuliffe was mastering aim at his regular toolics, he simply fought right on, in a way to please his opponent to a T. McAuliffe laughed in his corper, for he was bound to win, bar accident or a chance blow, if Dacey kept on as he was going. Could Dacey have made a good try at Mac on an entirely different tack he might still have had a chance.

There was next to no betting, for no one could see anything in taking a "fiyer" on Dacer. Five hundred dollars to $15 on McAuliffe was offered, with no takers, in the tenth round. with no takers, in the tenth round.

The fight ended with a knockdown of Dacey in the last minute of the eleventh round, and as he didn't get up to renew the battle at the end of the ten seconds allowed by the rules the fight and purse were awarded to McAuliffe.

He Will Be Hanged on the Day After

With his eyes rolling in his head the aged wife murderer was brought from the pen and arraigned before Recorder Smyth, who was to fix a day for his execution. He was ghastly pale and trembled so that a chair had to be placed for him to sit in. Lawyer Howe, his counsel, stood beside him. In his calm, undisturbed way the Recorder said:

"Reich, on the 1st of June last you were sentenced to be hanged on the 29th of the following July. You appealed from that judgment, but the Court of Appeals has sustained my ruling, and now I have only to sentence you to death again. In pursuance of law, I select Friday, Nov. 30, 1888, as the date upon which you must be executed. And may God have mercy on your soul."

Staggering Slightly, but without saying a word, Reich turned and walked hastily back to the pen. Unless the Governor interferes, there is now no hope for him.

Reich is fifty-eight years old. On the night of the 19th of April, 1887, he cut the throat of his wife, Lena, in their spartments at 144 Norfolk street. Jealousy was the motive which prompted the deed.

JOHNNY O'RRIEN WINKS At the Charges of Colonization in the Eighth, and Declares They Are False. declare that the charges that Chairman Quay is colonizing negroes in the Eighth Assembly District are false.
Inspector Williams, in whose district the Eighth is located, declares that the only places where colonization could occur is in lodging-houses and that there are none there devoted to colored people. "Capt. Cassidy is wide awake and can safely be trusted to check any such evil committed in the interest of any party or candidate," he said.

John J. O'Brien laughed at the "Quav-Higgins yarn." as he termed it, and said, with a sly wink: "We can take care of the Eighth District without any outside interference, and if illegal registration occurs we will stop it. It is entirely too early in the registration for such things.

"Why do they select the Eighth for such charges, anyhow? There are hundreds of lodging-houses in other districts where the same evil is more probable. The story looks very much like peanut politics." places where colonization could occur is in MAKING BREAD DEARER.

Either the Weight of Louven Must Stay Down or the Price Go Up.

Although the excitement among speculators in the grain market over "Old Hutch's" Chicago wheat corner practically died out a good many days ago, the price of flour has been jumping upward right along until it is been jumping upward right along until it is now all the way from $2.50 to $3.50 a barrel higher than it was two weeks ago.

One result very naturally following is the increased cost of bread. Thus far the move-ment among the bakers has been in the direc-tion of reducing the weight of loaves, which has been done to the extent of taking from one ounce to four off from the average five-cent loaf and as high as six ounces off from the eight-cent loaf. the eight-cent loaf.

To-night the German Bakers' Association will meet at 311 Fifth street to discuss the matter of raising the price of loaves.
